WORKPLACE

Our experience working with our clients in both the private and public sectors indicates a clear move towards agile working methodologies. We recognise that agile working is more than a space plan; it is an activity, a way of doing work.

For some businesses it represents a significant departure from their established culture and the way they do things. This is most noticeable in the public sector, but not exclusively so. Our role is to use our design skills to create the environment that will allow businesses to change and to provide clients with the guidance they will need to make the very best out of what has been provided.

INTERNATIONAL

Stephen George International has experience in providing space planning and create 3D visuals to give you an idea of the look and feel of your new space. At this stage we also prepare budget costs.

We produce a full design, suggesting finishes and furniture while our technical design team co-ordinate your mechanical and electrical (M&E) requirements. We present our design, pre-contract programme and cost proposals to you with the aim of entering into a JCT Design & Build Contract.
