Introduction

Stephen George + Partners (SGP) offers interior design and fit-out services alongside its established architectural expertise, creating well-considered, high-quality interiors across commercial workplaces, manufacturing and industrial environments, logistics facilities, residential and healthcare projects. The team focuses on delivering modern, efficient and visually engaging spaces that support how buildings are used.

With more than 50 years' experience working with both new and existing buildings, SGP combines creative design thinking with practical delivery knowledge. Working closely with clients, stakeholders, contractors and end users, the practice develops tailored solutions that respond to operational needs while maximising the potential of each space, including the careful adaptation and reuse of existing buildings.

SGP provides a comprehensive interior design service from inception through to completion. This includes client brief development, employee engagement, feasibility studies, space planning, concept and technical design, 3D modelling, CGI and virtual reality visualisation, as well as support through construction and furniture procurement, ensuring a cohesive and well-managed project throughout.

+ MORE ABOUT LIAM

Interior Design

We understand the opportunities and challenges involved in repurposing existing buildings, helping clients transform underused spaces into effective and engaging workplaces. By focusing on how organisations operate, we develop practical and imaginative interior solutions that maximise the potential of each building.

Our interior architecture and fit-out services support projects from inception to completion, including feasibility studies, building assessments and stakeholder engagement. Through careful space planning, furniture selection and sustainable material choices, we create environments that enhance wellbeing, productivity and long-term adaptability.

Working closely with our visualisation team, we use advanced tools such as 3D modelling, virtual reality and CGI to bring proposals to life. This integrated approach allows clients to explore and test ideas early, supporting confident decisions and successful project delivery.

Student Central

University of Bradford

An underused nightclub space was transformed into a vibrant hybrid social and study destination designed to revitalise Student Central as the focal point of campus life.

The design introduced a range of distinct zones including a social bar area, quieter study spaces and a biophilic Garden Hideaway lounge. Colour, form and contrasting floor finishes were used to break the large footprint into smaller, welcoming spaces with different atmospheres.

Inclusivity and wellbeing were central to the scheme, with improved daylight, accessible circulation and acoustic treatments creating a comfortable environment that supports the diverse needs of the student community.

Richmond Building

University of Bradford

The reception at the Richmond Building was redesigned to create a welcoming and distinctive arrival space that reflects the university's identity and cultural heritage.

Inspired by the Joseph Mayo mural on the building's façade, the design draws on its colours and patterns to form a strong visual focal point.

The scheme improved circulation, accessibility and the sense of arrival, transforming a previously fragmented entrance into a clear and inviting space. A central reception desk, inspired by the building's geometry and finished in vibrant ceramic tiles, forms the heart of the reception.

Carefully selected materials, lighting and views reconnect the space with the surrounding campus, creating an inclusive environment that welcomes students, staff and visitors.

Social Spaces

University of Bradford

Two new informal study environments were created to support the University's programme of casual learning spaces, transforming previously underused areas into welcoming, flexible interiors for students and staff.

The larger space was designed with a variety of seating settings, ranging from individual study areas to group tables and technology-enabled meeting spaces. Interior finishes were carefully coordinated with the adjacent reception, using terracotta tones, terrazzo flooring and darker accent colours to create a cohesive visual identity.

Acoustic comfort and spatial quality were key to the design, with carpet tiles, acoustic wall panels and furniture arrangements helping to create a calm, library-like atmosphere. The result is a series of adaptable interiors that support both focused study and informal collaboration.

The Hub DIRFT

Daventry

A dedicated training and education facility was designed to provide flexible, welcoming interiors that support learning, collaboration and social interaction.

The reception and café form the social heart of the building, creating a relaxed and informal environment for students, staff and visitors.

The interior design adopts a “peeled back” approach, exposing the building’s structure and using industrial materials balanced with planting and natural finishes to enhance wellbeing.

Flexible training rooms and meeting spaces allow the facility to adapt for teaching, conferences and events, supported by durable materials, movable furniture and integrated technology.

Aagrah Midpoint

Bradford

The interior redesign transformed the venue into an opulent and visually striking wedding destination, designed to create memorable and highly photogenic experiences for guests.

Rich colours, layered lighting and decorative finishes establish a luxurious atmosphere throughout the space.

The guest journey unfolds through a dramatic entrance, grand staircase and elegant banqueting hall, where feature elements including a large-scale elephant mural, floral installations and crystal chandeliers create theatrical focal points.

Refurbished existing features were combined with carefully selected new elements, including plush seating and statement lighting, to achieve a cohesive, high-end interior within budget.

Aagrah Kashmiri Restuarant

Bradford

The interior refurbishment transformed the ground-floor restaurant into a rich and immersive dining environment inspired by the colours and textures of Indian cuisine.

Warm earthy tones, wood finishes and accents of gold, green and burnt orange create a vibrant yet welcoming atmosphere.

Key spaces include a redesigned reception and bar, a private dining area and a refreshed buffet servery, with layered lighting and biophilic elements adding depth and character to the interior.

Existing features were carefully reused and enhanced, including slate wall tiles, mirrors and lighting, creating a cohesive and contemporary restaurant interior while delivering the project efficiently.
